

REMARKS REGARDING REJECTIONS AND AMENDMENTS TO THE CLAIMS

Claim Rejections under 35 U.S.C. 102(b)

1. Comments Regarding Foresi: At page 3 of the Examiner's Action the Examiner has rejected Claims 8-9 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Foresi. The Examiner states that Foresi discloses a putter apparatus having an upper shaft (30) with a counter weight in the form of a grip (33) proximal to an end (Fig. 5), and a grip clip means in the form of a clamp affixed with a hinge means at an apparatus upper shaft second end (Fig. 8).

The Examiner's attention is drawn to Foresi relative to the disclosure and claim of a bend (42) in the elongated member (30). The bend (42) is seen in Foresi at Fig. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, is described in the Detained Description at column 4/lines 40-57 and is claimed in Claim 1, column 6/lines 34-38.

The invention of your present applicant does not disclose or depict or claim a "bend (42)" corresponding to that of Foresi.

Foresi claims, in claim 1, "

...and the curve in the bent section and the angle of the member with respect to the shaft of the putter when rigidly attached thereto being such that the proximal end may be comfortably nestled under the golfer's armpit throughout the pendulum-like swing.

The Examiner is referred to the statement of the law under 35 U.S.C. 102, as follows, regarding "... any degree of physical difference between the patented product and the prior art, no matter how slight, defeats the claim of anticipation." American Permahedge, Inc. v. Barcana, Inc., 857 F. Supp. 308, 32 USPQ2d 1801, 1807-08 (S.D. N.Y. 1994) infra.

1 Claim 8 has been amended to state in part "said upper shaft (10) having adequate
2 length to contact the side of the player's neck;" Antecedent basis for this amendment is 3 found at Specification page 2/lines 19-20.

4 The rejection under Foresi has been addressed and the structure and claims of 5 Foresi has been demonstrated to differ from that specified and claimed by your applicant.
6 Accordingly, the Examiner is respectfully requested to withdraw the rejection under
7 Foresi and to allow claims 8 and 9.

9 2. Comments Regarding Smith: At page 4 of the Examiner's Action the 10 Examiner has rejected Claim 8 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Smith.
11 The Examiner states that Smith discloses a club apparatus able to be used as a putter
12 having an upper shaft with a counter weight in the form of a grip proximal to an end (Fig.
13 1), and a grip clip means in the form of a clamp affixed with a hinge means at an 14 apparatus upper shaft second end (Figs. 1-2).

15 The Examiner's attention is drawn to Smith relative to the disclosure and claims
16 wherein Smith neither discloses or claims a counter weight. The invention of your 17 present applicant does disclose and claims a "counter weight". The Examiner is referred 18 to the statement of the law under 35 U.S.C. 102, as follows, regarding "... any degree of 19 physical difference between the patented product and the prior art, no matter how 20 slight, defeats the claim of anticipation." American Permahedge, Inc. v. Barcana, Inc., 21 857 F. Supp. 308, 32 USPQ2d 1801, 1807-08 (S.D. N.Y. 1994) infra.

22 The rejection under Smith has been addressed and the structure and claims of 23 Smith have been demonstrated to differ from that specified and claimed by your 24 applicant. Accordingly, the Examiner is respectfully requested to withdraw the rejection
25 under Smith and to allow claim 8.

1 3. Comments Regarding Schuster: At page 4 of the Examiner's Action the 2 Examiner has rejected Claim 8 under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Schuster.
3 The Examiner states that Schuster discloses a putter apparatus having an upper shaft (4)
4 with a counter weight in the form of a pad (8) proximal to an end (Fig. 1), and a grip clip
5 means in the form of a clamp (12) affixed with a hinge means at an apparatus upper shaft
6 second end (Figs. 1-2).

7 The Examiner's attention is drawn to Schuster relative to the stated disclosure and 8 or claim of a counter weight. The Examiner equates the "counter weight" of your present
9 invention with a "pad" (8) of Schuster. The pad (8) is seen in Schuster at Fig. 1, 2, 5, 7
10 and 8, is described in the Detailed Description at column 5/lines 18-20 stating "...

11 A forearm cradle pad 8 is mounted coaxial at the bar's curved end, creating a 12 forearm cradle assembly 6.

13 And in claim 10 there is claimed "...said bar contains a pad at its distal end to comfort the 14 player."

15 There is no structural relationship between the "counter weight" of your present
16 invention and the "pad (8)" of Schuster. The "pad (8)" of Schuster is not a weight.

17 The invention of your present applicant does not disclose or depict or claim a 18 "pad". Schuster does not disclose or depict or claim a "weight" corresponding to the 19 counter weight of the present invention. The Examiner is referred to the statement of the 20 law under 35 U.S.C. 102, as follows, regarding "... any degree of physical difference 21 between the patented product and the prior art, no matter how slight, defeats the 22 claim of anticipation." American Permahedge, Inc. v. Barcana, Inc., 857 F. Supp. 308,

1 Claim 8 has been amended to state "said upper shaft (10) having adequate length

3 invention from Schuster. Antecedent basis for this amendment is found at Specification

6 The rejection under Schuster has been addressed and the structure and claims of 7 Schuster has been demonstrated to differ from that specified and claimed by your

9 Rejections under 35 U.S.C. 103(a)

10 4. Comments re: Smith in view of Hannon: The Examiner states at page 4
11 paragraph 8 that Claims 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable
12 over Smith in view of Hannon. The Examiner states that "Smith lacks a putter 13 shaft...Hannon discloses a club being a putter...In view of the patent of Hannon it would 14 have been obvious to modify the apparatus and club of Smith to include a putter in order
15 to utilize the advantages of having two handles for swinging a club for a putter club.
16

17 First, Smith has been demonstrated to not anticipate your present invention.
18 Further, the attributes described by the Examiner do not correspond to the attributes and 19 structure of the present invention.
20

21 The Examiner's attention is drawn to the essence of the present invention. The 22 "upper shaft (10)" of the present invention is not a "handle" to be grasped or which 23 functions as a "handle" to assist in swinging a club or a putter. The "said upper shaft (10)
24 having adequate length to contact the side of the player's neck;" functions as a training

1 prompt and is not a handle to be grasped.

2 Smith teaches a "handle" to be grasped for swinging of the club. Hannon teaches
3 a putter. Neither Smith or Hannon, separately or in combination, teach the training
4 structure of your present invention. There is no motivation shown to combine Smith and 5 Hannon.

7 The rejection under Smith in view of Hannon has been addressed, the structure
8 and claims of Smith have been distinguished from your present invention. Claim 8 has 9 been amended. Neither Smith or Hannon, separately or in combination, teach, direct or 10 suggest the structure of claims 9-11 and there is no motivation shown to combine.
11 Accordingly, the Examiner is respectfully requested to withdraw the rejection under 12 Smith in view of Hannon and to allow claims 9-11.

17 Tucker and Cline: The Examiner states at page 5 paragraph 10 that Claims 5, 12-14 are 18 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith in view of Hannon and 19 further in view of Foresi, Tucker and Cline. The Examiner is referred to the comments

1 invention. Smith in view of Foresi does not render the present invention obvious per the 2 preceding argument. Tucker discloses a clip. Cline discloses a clamp/clip tapering from 3 one end to the other.

5 It is respectfully submitted that Smith in view of Foresi and further in view of 6 Tucker and Cline does not teach, direct or suggest your present invention per claims 5 and 7 12-14.

9 Accordingly, the Examiner is respectfully requested to withdraw the rejection
10 under Smith in view of Hannon and further in view of Tucker and Cline and to allow 11 claims 5 and 12-14.

13 6. Comments re: Sosin in view of Foresi, Smith, Hannon, Tucker and Cline:

14 The Examiner states at page 7 paragraph 11 that Claims 5 and 7-14, all claims including
15 apparatus and method, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over 16 Sosin in view of Foresi, Smith, Hannon, Tucker and Cline. Claim 8 has been amended to 17 state "said upper shaft (10) having adequate length to contact the side of the player's 18 neck;"
19

20 The Examiner states that Sosin discloses a method of putting by positioning an 21 upper end of a shaft in contact with a golfer's neck and retaining the upper shaft in 22 contact with a golfer's neck through out the stroke (claim 1).
23

24 The Examiner's attention is respectfully drawn again to Sosin. The word neck is 25 not found in claim 1. Claim 1 of Sosin is a method which places the golf shaft on the golfer's shoulder. The Examiner will see the claim of a method of claim 1 is:

A method of putting, comprising:

addressing a golf ball in a sidesaddle stance;

swinging a putter having an elongated shaft; controlling the putter during the putting swing from at least three points of contact, wherein said at least three points of contact comprises;

the contact points of both hands, and the contact point of the shaft on a golfer's shoulder. "

The word neck, in Sosin, is found with reference to a bend in the neck of the club, proximal the club head, as shown in Fig. 8. Claim 1 of Sosin, a method claim, is distinctly distinguished from the method Claim 7 of the present invention which states:

7. (Previously amended) A method of training a golfer in putting or of putting by means of the golf putter training apparatus of claim 13 comprising the steps of:
a. receiving the upper shaft 10 at the grip clip (40) via the grip clip slot (42) by the putter lower shaft intermediate the putter head (100) and the golf putter grip (75) and moving the upper shaft (10) to grip affixing means contact of the grip clip (40) with the golf putter grip (75);
b. affixing the angular relationship (110) between the putter lower shaft (72) and the upper shaft (10) by adjusting the hinge means (42);
c. positioning the upper shaft first end (20) in contact with the golfer's neck (21);
d. training the golfer to execute the proper putting stroke and or making a putting stroke by the golfer sensing and retaining the upper shaft first end (20) in contact with the golfer's neck (21) throughout the putting stroke.

It is respectfully submitted that the method of Sosin, having a "contact point of the shaft on a golfer's shoulder." teaches away from the apparatus of your present invention at claim 8 and the method claim at claim 7.

It has been shown that the structures of Foresi and Smith are distinguished from

4 The rejection under Sosin in view of Foresi, Smith, Hannon, Tucker and Cline
5 has been addressed, the structure and claims of Foresi and Smith have been distinguished 6 from your present invention. Claim 8 has been amended. Sosin teaches away from the 7 present invention. Sosin, Foresi, Smith, Hannon, Tucker and Cline, separately or in 8 combination, do not teach, direct or suggest the structure or method of claims 5 and 7-14.
10 Additionally, there is no motivation shown to combine. Accordingly, the Examiner is 11 respectfully requested to withdraw the rejection and to allow claims 5 and 7-14.

19 Inc. 159 F.3d 534, 546(C.A.Fed. (Mich.),1998) stated the following:

21 Obviousness is a legal conclusion based on underlying facts of four general 22 types, all of which must be considered by the trier of fact: (1) the scope and 23 content of the prior art; (2) the level of ordinary skill in the art; (3) the

2 Determination of obviousness can not be based on the hindsight

18 We first look at the "known properties of the active ingredients" and compare
19 'functions in prior art with functions in the present invention'. If the prior art is sufficient 20 to show these characteristics then we move to the "hindsight reconstruction" analysis.
21 Does any prior art suggest the combinations presented by your applicant.

22 It is insufficient that prior art discloses components of a patented device, either
23 separately or in other combinations. Also "there must be some teaching, suggestion, or 24 incentive to make the combination made by the inventor.". Thus...[for obviousness the 25 Examiner] must have some evidence that the components claimed to be obvious both 26 existed at the time of your applicant's invention and combining them as your applicant
27 has done was suggested or taught by the prior art. Aero Industries, Inc. v. John Donovan

1 in light of the argument, amendments and responses submitted.

2 The applicant has set forth arguments and law for the basis upon which prior art
3 cited under 35 U.S.C. 103 should not result in a conclusion of obviousness for the present
4 invention as specified and claimed. The applicant has presented features of the present
5 invention which are not found within the claims of the referenced patents. The applicant
6 has presented law and argument to support the contention that the rejection of claims,
7 under 35 U.S.C. 103 should be withdrawn and now respectfully requests the Examiner to 8 withdraw the rejections.

The applicant has reviewed the Examiner's Action of October 18, 2004, and has addressed all objections and rejections disclosed therein. Accordingly, the applicant has made a good faith attempt to meet each objection and/or rejection as noted by the Examiner. The applicant has amended claims. Accordingly your applicant requests the Examiner to withdraw the said objections and rejections and to allow the claims as set forth and as amended.

~~Respectfully submitted~~
